Martin Amis hasn't just written the novels every Brooklynite pretends he or she can write. The BroBrit also just nabbed the brownstone every dweller wishes he or she had.

His new 5,300-square-foot brownstone is 22 feet wide by 60 feet deep and is currently configured as separate apartments. It features restored pine plank floors, tin ceilings and marble mantels, but all things considered looks a bit chilly and cavernous. Then again, the Brit is probably used to that.
